Additionally, the successful candidate will be expected to teach in one or more content areas within the program based on candidate experience and program needs.

Ideal candidates will have previous experience with the administration of clinical education in a DPT program and clinical/teaching expertise one or more of the following areas: cardiopulmonary, integumentary, neurology, or acute care.

Faculty are involved in the development and evaluation of the program and of the students. Faculty are actively involved in teaching, guidance and academic advising of students and report to the School's Dean.
